

Moveable walls and flexible workspace at the RCP in Liverpool

At the northern home of the Royal College of Physicians (RCP), called The Spine, Style was specified to create flexible space.

To achieve a highly adaptable working environment, Style installed 10 Dorma Huppe semi-automatic Variflex moveable walls over 3 floors, each with a chic laminate finish. On the thirteenth floor, the Royal College of Physicians added its own graphics to create a highly stylish interior design.

Offering the ability to open up the floor space, or create individual rooms based upon requirements, the moveable walls not only offer flexibility but also provide exceptional privacy thanks to their impressive 57dB acoustic integrity. Integrated pass doors allow ease of movement between rooms.

“We were incredibly proud to have been specified to deliver flexible space in this pioneering new building, and the EPD certification of the Variflex was important to the sustainability criteria,” said Andy Gibson, Style’s director for the North.
