

Global bank specifies Style to divide spacious new offices

Capital One recently relocated their London offices to the White Collar Factory, a state-of-the-art development in Old Street.

Allowing the large open-plan space to be rapidly reconfigured for different sized gatherings, Style installed a DORMA Moveo semi-automatic glazed moveable wall, which quickly forms a central divide to create two substantial sized meeting rooms. A second DORMA wall can then be used to sub-divide that space into two further, smaller meeting rooms.

The panels of the larger DORMA Moveo glass wall can be effortlessly moved into place whereupon electronic seals automatically expand to exactly the right pressure to form an exceptional acoustic barrier of 55db Rw. Natural light throughout the area is maximised whilst the incredible views across the London skyline are retained.

The second DORMA partitioning wall is finished in a stylish green fabric with Squiggle Glass magnetic white boards, adding functionality during meetings, brainstorming sessions and seminars.

Style's partitioning solution gives Capital One the choice of three working areas; the full open plan space, the two larger meeting rooms or the single large area with the two smaller rooms.
